DISCOVERIES BY JAMES

Of Valuable Tracts of Land and $7,000 in Cash, Which He Claims
Belongs to the State.

Frankfort, Ky.—State Auditor Frank
P. James will be put in the class with Dr. Cook and Commander Peary soon by Kentuckians if he continues to make his discoveries. The latest announcement is that he has found 200 valuable tracts of land in Clay county, valued at $6000 each, and $1000 in cash belonging to the state in Clay county, making a total of $15,000. He returned from a tour of inspection, and the matter has been placed in the hands of Attorney General Breckinridge to help along the claim, which is based on the conclusion of the tract of land with Auditor James belongs to the state.
The state is occupied by A. B. Howard, father of the noted James Howard, convicted for the murder of Gov. Bevel, which, he says, was sold at auction without his knowledge. The state attorney in Clay county, who has been convinced of the state's claim, has been ordered to take the land and the cash and return it to the state.
A part of this land was recently sold to John D. White for $5000, and it was during the examination of the deed to see the title that the state claim was discovered. Another tract of land is claimed by the state, which was sold to a private party, and the state claims that the land was sold to the state and the money was not returned to the state.

Glen was taken to a hospital and will recover.

righted principally toward his son Thomas P. Glen, Jr., 22 years old, who was found dead in a ditch near Frankfort, Ky., where he had been frequenting. Glen was taken to a hospital and will recover.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicine would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early years through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric emulsion, extracted from native medicinal roots—mild for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Troubles, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of Wind, Chronic Diarrhea and other intestinal derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine or poison. Be sure, not even though the dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

LEDGER $1.00 PER YEAR.

The Ledger will inform the voters of Calloway next week why Judge Joe McCarroll, candidate for circuit judge, refuses further to meet Jack Hanbery in joint debate. We expect to further show some facts regarding the primary of last fall that has possibly escaped the memory of some of our voters. And we also expect to enlighten the folks as to why the so-called self-styled law and order bunch of local politicians are now whooping 'em up for Denny Smith and Jack Hanbery and determined to cram this pair of twins down the throats of the real law-loving, law-obeying, decent people out in the country. It's a mixture of gall and wormwood that the voters will not swallow. It will take more than a party lash to force it down, and it is going to be impossible for a bunch of pirates to sugar coat the pill and fool the folks with the dose. The siren song of "law and order" sung last fall to a fare ye well, but the music that was made to soothe the savage breast has lost its charm. The mask of deception that has been worn has been torn away and the real purpose stands exposed. The livery of heaven was stolen with which to serve the devil and the wearers have been caught with the goods on em.

Melan left Tuesday afternoon for Summer to be present at the funeral.

The Murray Ledger

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.
MURRAY, KENTUCKY
RURAL POSTAL SERVICE.

Bolton has a saying given to a tree in the time in which that young offshoot of the postoffice department, the rural delivery system, has attained its full dimensions, says the Murray American. The development of the system that found its inception in Carroll county in this state, has been a marvel of public convenience. Up to the present time the service has cost the government $120,000,000 and the third year has not yet expired of the time of its full adoption. It now numbers daily 2,000,000 routes and covers 40,000 miles. The advantage of the service and the facilities it has made to the postal facilities have done more than any other one thing, aside from modern methods of transportation and the telephone and telegraph, to promote intelligence in the country and to break the isolation of country districts. Yet when the service was started it was bitterly opposed for interested motives and the people whom it was designed to serve lamented the innovation.

Haring will receive a severe check in the dismissal of the Post Point cadets convicted of having Cadet Sutton. The punishment of ruined careers is a hard one for the fully in which the young men indulged, but they had the choice, with open eyes, between duty and a career, and if they chose the former they must, in the army, be maintained at a high standard of discipline, take the consequences. A young man thinks it of importance that "cocky" newcomers should have the nonsense taken out of them. Public opinion and all experience show that the first lesson a soldier must learn is the great one of obedience, says the Baltimore American. If the two stand alone, conflict, not even the most ardent exorcise of youthful folly will contend that that of military obedience must go. It is understood that punishment in this case is irreparable, the persistence of having it up to give way to determined authority.

Hon. MARCUS A. KNAPP, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission, believes there will be a tremendous increase in railroad tonnage this fall and he doubts the ability of the carriers to handle the goods. The great crops and the general revival of business mean a big demand for freight cars, with the likelihood of scarcity and congestion similar to the conditions of two and three years ago. Knapp would dictate, says the Wall Street Journal, that the railroad companies make immediate provision for an increase of equipment. "In deed, that judgment maintains that there should be always a reserve of 20 per cent of the number of cars in common use, for the periods of emergency and pressure. The car builders should get a move on, and thus keep the track clear for the procession of reviving business."

As plans mature it becomes apparent that the Hudson-Fulton celebration is to be one of the greatest affairs of the kind on record. It is officially announced that the display of warships will be bigger than has ever been seen, with one or two exceptions. The representation of American naval vessels will consist of 16 battleships, three armored cruisers, three scout cruisers, 12 torpedo boats, four submarines, two parent ships attending these craft, one tender and 12 auxiliary ships. When to these shall be added the foreign naval vessels there may be some conception of the imposing show that is being prepared to take place in the waters where the Hall Monitor explored and the Clermont first attested to the value of steam as a means of navigation.

Oyster farmers are said to be bringing the finest and fattest oysters ever taken on the coast to the markets of the east, to start the season. If this information is supplemented by oyster packers with effort to give western consumers oysters worthy the name, there will be joy in this section also. There was a big improvement in the character of the shipped oyster last year, and the trade picked up in consequence. Therefore it may be expected that the oyster trade will endeavor to cultivate further consumption by doing the right thing with the oyster and with the buyer in western markets.

Next to the dismay at the waste of the natural resources of America is the gratification at the extent of the movement to remedy the loss and to prevent further extravagance. Conservation congresses are being held in all parts of the country, and right for north, south and east, as well as the west, have been affected by the prodigal methods.

Though the north pole has been discovered it will hardly be overrun with visitors.

The Winning of Hulda

By Charles L. Doyle

(Copyright by W. H. Chapman.)

Hulda was having a hard time of it, for she found herself unable to decide which of her two suitors she preferred. Hans, she had to confess, presented some advantages which weighed heavily in his favor. Mr. Hall, the man across the street who owned the big apartment building, was particular about his furniture and she knew that he liked Hans. Besides, Hans could speak Swedish and the school urged that it was pleasant to talk with him in the language of the dear old home across the sea.

But whenever his plain, open countenance with the blue eyes twinkling below the yellow hair was pointed to in her mind she blushed him for being a little too ordinary. She could see a dozen such any Sunday in the little Swedish church. Now with a man who wore a fine blue coat with a five-pointed star on the front of it, and carried a mahogany club it was different. No one who looked at him could fail to see that he, being a part of the government, was superior to the common run of men. Michael had told her that he was the right arm of the law, and she had looked at him with admiration. She had known him almost as long as she had Hans and he was very good to her.

On Sundays in the park he would get her a seat close up to the band stand. Then when the concert was over he would stroll across that part of the park that had signs to warn of the danger erected upon it. Of course Michael, the all-powerful could walk wherever he pleased. He was aware that Hans was his rival for one Saturday night he had come to see Hulda and found the Swedish woman there. Hulda had said:

He Would Get Her a Seat Close to the Band Stand.

Hans, this is Mr. Flanagan, and Hans had responded cordially, but Michael accepted the introduction sulkily, and sat sulkily at the sink all the rest of the evening. After that the sagacious Mr. Flanagan ceased visiting Hulda on Saturdays and obtained a transfer to another station, so that he could do his duties on Monday or Tuesday nights. Hans did not alter his visiting schedule, so the rivals never met at Hulda's home again. Indeed Michael took so little pains to cultivate Hans's acquaintance that he never even dreamed of inquiring what the former did for a living, and this disdainful indifference was destined to prove costly. In the end, how Hulda would have learned to know the true sentiments of her heart had not Hank O'Leary, the policeman, seen in mid-air a faithful train of circumstances, one cannot guess. Hank did not know Hulda, he does not know her to the present day, and yet it was none other than the enigmatic of the few wagon who unwittingly unmasked her heart's desire.

Hank O'Leary drove a pair of black and white horses. One morning when the few wagon was empty, his aesthetic instincts led him to return to the park by way of the street. He passed the park, just as the chariot of fate was bearing Hulda's horse the chains and the back of the wagon slipped and let the end gate drag upon the ground. Hank swore impatiently, stopped his team and jumped to the ground to fasten the chain. He jerked it quickly through the iron rings and then, aware suddenly again as the team, becoming alarmed by the sudden noise, swung forward and galloped madly down the avenue, making straight for the corner entrance to the park. The Lorri and Hans stood still long enough to see the detested lines and in the same moment there came to him the realization of his opportunity for revenge. He ran into the roadway and as the flying wagon passed, caught the chain of the end gate and swung himself in.

DELIGHTS OF THE CITY LIFE

How Pleasant to Have Everything Brought to Your Door at No Inconvenience to You!

The rear door opened, with a lock and closed with a bang that shook the house. Heavy footsteps resounded; there was a crash and then more foot steps, another bang and all was still. The householder sighed wearily and dozed off again. At first he thought it must be a cyclone at least, but this was because he had been asleep. He recognized it in the light of awakened faculties as the policeman.

After a while he stretched his arms above his head and consulted the alarm clock that stood on the table beside him. There was plenty of time, and he dozed off again. Another bang of the rear door, more footsteps, another slam as of a door, the lid, more footsteps, another bang and then stillness. Now what? Oh, yes, the milkman.

A ponderous knocking came on the door and the householder arose in his night clothes to see what manner of trouble it might be, for his wife was away and he was keeping bachelor hall.

It was the breadman. As the householder dressed himself, knocking brought the grocery's order man. Before he had shaved a ring at the doorbell indicated another commercial visitor. This one was the laundry man.

Hurriedly the householder completed his toilet, but not quite soon enough to escape a little girl selling soap to get a set of silver-plated teaspoons, a negro who had devalued the grass mowed cutting and a vegetable peddler, who had straggled to sell at bargain rates. Then the householder locked the door and hurried to the car, deciding to take all his meals down town and maybe sleep at a hotel. He unlocked back and saw a disapproving looking man coming out of his gate carrying a package that suggested sample books. And as he waited for the car he saw the washerwoman with a basket of clothes go in, but he did not return.—(Galveston News)

Cleared Up.—The face of the richly gowned lady that hurried into the elderly physician's private office. "Dr. Swallow," said she, "this morning I received your bill for $10, and I can't understand it. Some time ago I settled our account and have had no occasion to consult you professionally since."

"Did I not call at your house one day since that?" "Oh, no, my guest at dinner, doctor. That was four weeks ago, and an apprehensive shade overspread the dignified physician's countenance, as quickly he withdrew his notebook from his pocket and rapidly rifled over the leaves.

"Here it is," said he, stopping at a certain page. "Dinner at Mrs. Pendope's. Lamentable. Ekd out the hour by giving hostess my opinions on the digestibility of mustard pickles, scalloped oysters and plum cake, and then, as I was about to retire, thinking I should see the amount of the bill which you received, Madam, it should have been twenty-five."—Life

GUARDING TOWER TREASURES

System Is Said to Be Most Perfect That Has Ever Been Devised.

The Tower of London has the most perfect system of burglar alarms that has yet been devised.

From Scotland Yard, from the governor's headquarters, and from other places, only a few responsible officials, the whole tower can be closed electrically within a few seconds. Even the ponderous gates at the middle tower, which "come tons and through which visitors pass, swing to automatically, and the escape of every one within is instantly barred. At the same time an alarm bell rings to warn wardens, police, and soldiers.

In particular the precautions in the apartment containing the crown jewels are of a most scientifically elaborate kind. One of the secretaries at duty in the room has merely to press a button, whereupon the heavy door closes, the alarm bell below rings, and every person within the tower is instantly cut off from the outer world. The man who can get away with any of the crown jewels deserves death. When a tower official from where I am standing I could close every important door and gate in the tower in as short a time as it takes me to utter these words: "It was mainly to insure the safety of the crown jewels that the system was installed."

No order was issued for the closing of the tower on a recent day, when greatly to their alarm, the visitors found "doors locked, buttons and levers against them for about ten minutes, presenting any one leaving the tower. "The tower simply closed—that is all," remarked an official. "We caused it to do so we do not know it might have been Scotland Yard where the pressing of a button would imprison every soul within the tower until the police gave the signal for their release. Or it might have been the governor, anxious to learn whether we were all at our posts. At any rate, it was none of the minor of states."

In fact, why closed the tower and why is a secret known only to the highest authorities. There was no alarm—no attempt to seize the crown jewels.—London Daily Mail.

Good Jokes

OF SIGNAL SERVICE.

"You look very odd, little boy," said the benevolent old lady. "Can I be of any help to you?" "The little boy, who had been reading a class of literature believed of his kind, threw down the book and struck an attitude. "Hut, old woman," he declared. "Thou canst be of signal service to me as then will direct you to my shop across the way? Take this house cold and command the merry leave with in to supply thee with two cigarettes and a lutlitz, the secret, mother, and betray me not, or thy life shall pay the forfeit. I will await thee here, Nagasaki!"

FELINE AMENITIES.

The Light Cat—You don't seem to like that new dog best door. The Dark Cat—I like him—fur straight.

Good Reason.—I never had a dear assle. To charm me with her soft mild eye. If you must know the reason, well, My wife might find it out, that's why.

Sea's Tremendous Action.—After lying at the bottom of the sea undisturbed for a century and a half one of the guns of H. M. S. Ramfitt, which was wrecked near Salt Tail, on the south coast of Devon, has been recovered. One side of the weapon has been worn away, with the action of pebbles and slugs which were it by the tide to such an extent, says the London Chronicle, that at the muzzle the thickness of iron is very little and for its whole length the metal has the appearance of being gradually filed away. Even the trunnions which originally took its weight on the gun carriage, have been worn to spikes.

Chinese Inland Mission.—In the China inland mission, which was opened 44 years ago, there are 924 foreign missionaries residing at 210 stations. During the last year 45 new workers joined the mission, three missionaries died and it retired. Since the commencement of the mission 30,000 Chinese have been received into church fellowship, and of these more than 21,000 survive. During the year 1906 there were received 2,507 into fellowship.

No Crime.—Angler—Is this public water, my son? Inhabitant—Aye. Angler—Then it won't be a crime if I land a fish? Inhabitant—No, no; it will be a miracle.

GONE THE LONG JOURNEY.

(Peene, the nursery) Mamma—Let your little brother play with your marble at once, sir, like a nice, unselfish boy. He'll give them all back to you. Willie—No, he won't; he's swallowed eight of them already.

Explained.—What is your verdict? Tell it if you can. It's when a club woman has wed a club man.

Not for Him.—"Edison says he has perfected his storage battery so as to put the horse in the harness place." "He need not have troubled so far as I am concerned, the horse has always been in the 'never was' class for me."

As It Should Be.—"Things are not evenly balanced in this world," remarked the thoughtful thinker. "How's that?" queried the dense party. "There should be more leisure for men of business and more business for men of leisure," answered the first.

Of Course Not.—"I see where a writer says: 'Good-bye to the fairy tale.'" "Are all the married men dead?"

Father's in his stich. Close to open for day, looking after home and home in Europe, over the way. Mother, who likes comfort, And don't care to roam, Is shipping via wireless, In Paris, at her home. Brother, who in deep seas Has a good story, Is going in the submarine Among his crew to save. When he gets a ship a span, Is shouting through pneumatic tubes: "To Jink for in Japan."

Much in a Name.—"What because of that paper you were going to start in the interest of uplifting the poor tramp?" asked the interviewer. "Ah, it fell through," confessed the great reformer, with much agitation, and all on account of the blustering carelessness of the printer. "Did he make a grave error?" "It should say so. You know the paper was to be named the 'Star of Hope.' Well, that kind of a printer changed it to the 'Star of Soap,' and as soon as my constituents heard the name they started rubbing and they are running yet."

In 1910.—Suddenly the great game in the summer of 1910, stopped. "What's the trouble?" shouted the grand stand. "Let the game go on!" "Shuts them play!" thundered the bleachers. "Shut the umpire!" Just then the manager came out and held up his hand. "Patience, gentlemen, patience! The game will go on just as soon as the fly cups chase that fleet of ships from over the diamond. Those on them are catching the balls as fast as they are batted upward." And then the fly cups began to fly in every direction.

RECOGNITION.

"Darling," he cried, throwing aside all reserve, "do you not know me?" As he took her to his bosom, she sobbed:—"Your face is familiar, although I can't quite recall your name."

Oh, Fudge!—Four times in one half hour I rose from my much needed slumber. To go downstairs and tell some one: "Now, you've got the wrong number."

Why He Didn't.—Two gentlemen, shooting in Scotland, sat down to lunch. On taking a bottle of whisky out, one of them noticed that the cork had been tampered with, and, knowing the character of their game, at once accused him of having been at the lunch basket. "I fear that you have been drinking the whisky, Sandy."

Two Different Causes.—"Oh, dear, sighed the pretty belle, "I'm so awfully miserable!" "Why are you miserable?" queried the maid who was both homely and penniless. "I'm afraid some one will marry me for my money," answered the pretty belle. "And I," rejoined the poor girl, "am miserable because I'm afraid no one will marry me because I haven't any money."

What She Hoped.—Miss Cayenne—Why, I thought you were to call for Euphie yesterday? Callowell—That was my law—intention, don't know, but I saw changed me mind at the last moment. Miss Cayenne—Glad to hear it—and I hope you get a better one in the end. Callowell—A poor man! Alice—I suppose it is completely reconciled to the loss of her first husband, isn't she? Emily—Oh, yes, but they say her second husband probably never will become reconciled to it.

Unusual at Least.—"Cold comfort this, isn't it?" "What is?" "Wearing wraps in July."

The most important part of the human system is the blood. Every muscle, nerve, tissue, bone and sinew is dependent on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength necessary to maintain them in health and enable each to perform the different duties nature requires. Even the heart; the very "engine" of life receives its vigor and motive power from the blood. Since so much is dependent on this vital fluid it can very readily be seen how necessary it is to have it pure and uncontaminated if we would enjoy the blessing of good health. Bad blood is responsible for most of the ailments of the human body. It becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, disease in some form is sure to follow. Muddy, sallow complexion, eruptions, pimples, etc., show that the blood is infected with unhealthy humors which have changed it from a pure fresh stream to a sour, acrid fluid, which forces out its impurities through the pores and glands of the skin. A very common evidence of bad blood is sores or ulcers, which break out on the flesh, often from a very insignificant bruise or even a scratch. If the blood is pure and healthy the place would heal at once, but being tainted with impurities, which are discharged into the wound, irritation and inflammation are set up and the sore continues. Bad blood is also responsible for Anemia, Rickets, Malaria, etc.; the weak, polluted circulation cannot furnish the body with the nourishment required to sustain the body and general run down condition of health results. S. S. S. is nature's blood purifier and tonik, cures entirely of healing, cleansing tons and herbs. It goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impurity, humor or poison that may be there, restores lost vitality, and steadily tones up the entire system. It adds to the blood the valuable properties it is lacking, and cures the cure of the cure of the cure. S. S. S. neutralizes any excess of acid in the blood, making it fresh and pure, and permanently cures Eczema, Acute, Tetters, and all other skin diseases and eruptions. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrhs, Sores and Ulcers, Malaria, and all other diseases or disorders arising from bad blood. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired free to all who write.
